217 * * B. C. The Romans send two new armies against Hannibal; one under Cneius Servilius advances by the Via Flaminius, and the other under Caius Flaminius by the Via Cassia.

* * B. C. Hannibal having released all prisoners from the Roman allies without ransom, all Italy is incited to desert Rome.

* * B. C. Hannibal flanks the Romans by crossing the Apennines and entering the region of the Arno [in Tuscany] with severe fighting; he himself loses an eye.

Apr. * B. C. Hannibal annihilates an army of 30,000 men at the Trasimene Lake; Flaminius is killed by Dusarius, the Gaulic leader, in single combat.

* * B. C. Rome. Terror prevails because of the near approach of Hannibal and the loss of an army. Preparations are made for the defense of the city; the bridges over the Tiber are destroyed.

* * Hannibal fails in an attempt to surprise Spoletium, and passes on to Picenum on the Adriatic, where he opens communication with Carthage.

* * B. C. Hannibal passes through Samnium, thence to Arpi in Apulia, followed at a discreet distance by the Roman army under Fabius Maximus, who avoids a pitched battle, but provokes many skirmishes.

* * B. C. M. Minucius has a fortunate skirmish with the enemy, and is given command of half the army as a second dictator, by the populace of Rome. He attacks Hannibal, and is saved from annihilation by the first dictator.

216 * * B. C. L. Æmilius Paulus and Caius Terentius Varro are elected consuls to crush Hannibal with a force of 86,000 Romans and allies.

Aug. 2. B. C. Varro's army is annihilated by Hannibal at Cannæ, with 50,000 men.

Eighty men of senatorial rank fall, also the Consul Paulus. Incompetent Varro, with only a small force, escapes. Three bushels of rings are taken from the hands of Roman knights and sent to Carthage. Hannibal's loss is 4,500 men.

* * B. C. The legion sent to Cisalpine Gaul is almost entirely destroyed.

* * B. C. The Romans levy a new army from the young and old of all classes and including slaves. Marcus Claudius Marcellus commands. The dictator M. Junius is given a second army.

* * B. C. The Romans successfully defend Naples, Cumæ, and Nola.

* * B. C. Hannibal enters winter quarters at Capua, Campania.

215 * * B. C. Three Roman armies are led by the two consuls, Maximus and Tiberius Gracchus, and the proconsul, M. Claudius Marcellus.

* * B. C. Turk. Philip V. of Macedonia enters an alliance with Hannibal. [214. The King of Syracuse becomes his ally.]

215-206 B. C. The Romans engage in the first Macedonian war (p. 1026).

They prevent Philip V., an ally of Hannibal, sending reenforcements into Italy.

* * B. C. Marcellus defeats Hannibal at Nola; but he retires to Apulia.

214-212 B. C. Sicily. The Romans carry the war into Sicily, and besiege Syracuse. [212. Marcellus captures and plunders the city after a vigorous defense by Archimedes.]

214 * * B. C. Aust. Philip V. fails at Apollonia (p. 1026). [211. He is diverted by Grecian complications.]

212 * * B. C. Hannibal gains Tarentum through treachery, and besieges the citadel.

* * B. C. Hannibal defeats two Roman armies in Lucania and Apulia, and retires to Tarentum.

* * B. C. Sp. The Carthaginians and their ally, Masinissa of Numidia, defeat and kill both of the Scipios; the Romans retreat across the Ebro.

211 * * B. C. The Romans repulse Hannibal at Capua, Campania. Hannibal marches upon Rome, and encamps within a mile of the city; Rome is prepared to resist, and he returns.

* * B. C. Capua surrenders to the Romans, and is terribly punished.

Fifty-three citizens are beheaded, many are sold into slavery, and all denied the right of self-government; authority is reestablished in many cities.

210 * * B. C. Publius Cornelius Scipio, 24 years of age, is sent into Spain with proconsular powers. He captures New Carthage.

* * B. C. Cneius Fulvius is defeated by Hannibal at Herdonia.

* * B. C. Sicily. The Romans take Agrigentum, kill the Carthaginian garrison, sell the populace as slaves, and subjugate the whole island.

209 * * B. C. Hannibal defeats M. Marcellus; the next day Marcellus defeats Hannibal. Marcellus is killed in a cavalry skirmish at Venusia [Potenza].

208 * * B. C. Sp. Scipio fights an indecisive battle at Bæcula with Hasdrubal, who escapes across the Pyrenees to join his brother Hannibal in Italy.

207 * * B. C. N. It. Hasdrubal arrives, and incites the Gauls to arms.

Great endeavors are made by the Romans to prevent his union with Hannibal, who advances toward him from South Italy. The consuls, M. Livius Salinator and C. Claudius Nero, are sent against Hannibal with a great army.

* * B. C. Q. Fabius Maximus captures Tarentum, and sells 30,000 people as slaves. Hannibal retires to Metapontum.

* * B. C. Indecisive battle of Grumentum; Hannibal escapes from Nero toward Apulia, and encamps at Canusium.

* * B. C. The two consuls decisively defeat Hasdrubal, near the River Metaurus, south of Rimini, and nearly annihilate his army; Hasdrubal is killed, and his head thrown into Hannibal's camp; Hannibal retires to Bruttium.

* * B. C. Sp. Scipio defeats the Carthaginians at Bæcula. He conquers Gades [Cadiz], and expels the Carthaginians from Spain.

205 * * B. C. Mago, the youngest brother of Hannibal, lands at Genoa.

He brings from Spain the remnant of the Carthaginian army, and incites the Ligurians to rise against the Romans. The Romans levy three armies to defeat this cowardly commander.

204 * * B. C. Afr. Scipio crosses over from Sicily into Africa.

He has only small volunteer force, but he is joined by Masinissa, King of Numidia, who had been driven from his throne by the Carthaginians.

203 * * B. C. Afr. Scipio makes a successful attack and threatens Carthage.

* * B. C. Scipio and Hannibal make fruitless negotiations for peace.

* * B. C. Calabria. The Carthaginians recall Hannibal and his brother Mago from Italy to protect Carthage.

Hannibal massacres the Italian soldiers who refuse to go with him to Africa, and embarks at Croton for Leptio.

202 * * B. C. Afr. Scipio [Africanus] annihilates Hannibal's army at Zama, 85 miles from Carthage.

200-191 B. C. The Cisalpine Gauls and Ligurians are suppressed, and Upper Italy is again subjugated after a terrible struggle.

200-197 B. C. Second Macedonian war.

Caused by King Philip's interference by furnishing mercenaries to fight against the Romans at Zama; Rome is also entreated to become the ally of the King of Pergamus and the citizens of Rhodes and Athens against oppressions of Philip.

200 * * B. C. Aust. P. Sulpicius Galba lands at Apollonia in Illyria. His fleet guards Piræus and threatens Eubœa.

* * B. C. Via Æmilia is constructed as a military road from Ariminum [Rimini] to Placentia (N. It.).

* * B. C. Placentia is nearly destroyed by the Gauls.

* * B. C. Gr. Philip V. is repulsed by the Romans before Athens, and driven out of Central Greece.

199 * * B. C. Gr. The Ætolians and the Achæans join the Romans against the Macedonians.

198 * * B. C. Gr. Flaminius takes command of the army and subdues Epirus.

197 * * B. C. Philip V. routed (p. 1026).

Philip gives up all possessions beyond Macedonia, and agrees to pay 1,000 talents ($1,250,000) in ten years, and to limit his army to 5,000 soldiers, and to retain only five ships of war. Thereby Macedonia is degraded to a second-rate power.

196 * * B. C. The Insubres, north of the Po, are subdued.

192-189 B. C. War with Antiochus III. of Syria.

He refuses to restore the Egyptian provinces to Rome. The Achæan League supports the Romans, who also find allies in the Macedonians, Eumenes II., King of Pergamus, and in Rhodes.

191 * * B. C. Antiochus defeated (p. 1026).

* * B. C. Consul Manius Acilius Glabrio lands in Epirus, and marches into Thessaly.

* * B. C. The Romans conquer the Boii, of Cisalpine Gaul; 32,000 are killed.

* * B. C. Gr. The Ætolians are surprised and defeated by Marcus Procius Cato in a mountain pass. Later besieged in Naupactus [Lepanto]. Also again defeated in a naval battle near Chios. [190. They submit.]

190 * * B. C. Asia M. The Rhodian allies defeat the fleet of Antiochus III., commanded by Hannibal the Carthaginian, at the mouth of the Eurymedon.

* * B. C. Asia M. The combined fleets of Rhodes and Rome under L. Æmilius defeat the Syrian fleet commanded by Antiochus III. at Myonnesus.

* * B. C. Asia M. The Romans are victorious at Magnesia (p. 1026).

171-168 B. C. Third Macedonian war (p. 1028).

* * B. C. Turk. The Romans make three unsuccessful campaigns against Perseus, son of Philip V.

168 * * B. C. Turk. Lucius Æmilius Paulus obtains command, restores discipline, and drives back Macedonians.

June 22. B. C. Battle of Pydna (p. 1028).

* * B. C. Turk. Samothrace is taken by Paulus; the conquest of Macedonia is completed.

* * B. C. Aust. The Romans subdue Genthius, King of Illyria, an ally of Perseus, and divide his kingdom.

154±-140± B. C. Sp. War with the Lusitanians.

150 * * B. C. Asia. Demetrius Soter is defeated and slain by Alexander Balas, the usurper.

149-146 B. C. The third Punic war.

It is caused by the Carthaginians making an attack on Masinissa, the King of Numidia, an ally of Rome, who seized their territory. Carthage is destroyed.

149 * * B. C. Afr. Two Roman armies land at Utica, 25 miles from Carthage.

The Carthaginians deliver up their arms and war-ships, but refuse to abandon their city, and establish a new town 10 miles from the sea. With patriotic ardor they proceed to manufacture arms and prepare for war; all ranks and ages and both sexes unite in the struggle.

* * B. C. Having constructed a new fleet, they repel an attack of the Romans in the harbor. The Romans besiege Carthage.

148-146 B. C. Fourth Macedonian war.

The Macedonians, led by Andriscus, the alleged Philippus, brother of Perseus, revolt against the Romans.

147-139 B. C. Sp. War in Lusitania against the brave chief Viriathus; it ends in his betrayal and death.

147 * * B. C. Afr. Publius Cornelius Scipio Æmilianus Africanus Minor, the adopted son of P. Cornelius Scipio Africanus and son of Æmilius Paulus, assumes command against Carthage. [146. Captured and burned; survivors, slaves.]

* * B. C. Asia. Alexander I. (Balas) is defeated by Ptolemy Philometor (p. 652).

167 * * B. C. Polybius, and 1,000 other Achæans of high standing, arrive for examination [and are detained in Italian cities under surveillance, but without trial, for 16 years].

STATE.

217 * * B. C. Rome is terrified; Q. Fabius Maximus is appointed dictator.

The Samnites, Lucanians, and many cities of lower Italy secede from Rome. [The States of Magna Græcia are ruined by siding with Hannibal.]

216 * * B. C. Sicily. Hieronymus becomes ruler of Syracuse [and an ally of Carthage, which creates a rupture with Rome].

211 * * B. C. Hannibal having failed in his attacks upon Rhegium and on the citadel of Tarentum, he is abandoned by his Italian allies.

207 * * B. C. Hasdrubal succeeds in inciting the Cisalpine Gauls to arms against the Romans.

206 * * B. C. Scipio, the conqueror of Spain, enters a secret alliance with Masinissa, and returns to Rome.

205 * * B. C. Scipio is elected consul, and prepares an African expedition. [201. He is named Africanus.]

* * B. C. Spain is regarded hereafter as a Roman province. [197. Two provinces are made — Hispania Citerior and Hispania Ulterior.]

202 * * B. C. Rome. The last dictator is nominated for municipal business.

201 * * B. C. Carthage makes peace.

Terms: (1) She abandons her possessions in Spain and in the islands of the Mediterranian, but retains her territory in Africa intact; (2) transfers the kingdom held by Syphax to Masinissa; (3) assumes an indemnity of 10,000 talents in 50 years (₤250,000); (4) surrenders all her ships but 10, and her elephants; (5) is to undertake no war without the consent of Rome.

* * B. C. Rome punishes the Italian allies of Hannibal.

They are in part required to cede large portions of their territory, also in part are subjugated to Rome. Eastern Sicily is united with the western part as one province.

± * * B. C. Numerous Roman colonies are founded in lower Italy.

198 * * B. C. Rome. Titus Quinctius Flaminius becomes consul.

196 * * B. C. Gr. Flaminius proclaims the decree of the Senate declaring the Greek states free and independent. [194. Roman troops withdraw.]

195 * * B. C. Afr. A democratic reform of the Carthaginian constitution is carried out through the influence of Hannibal, who is defamed before the Roman senate by the oligarchs and his surrender demanded; Hannibal becomes a fugitive in the East.

192 * * B. C. Syria. Interference of Antiochus III. with Grecian affairs and of Romans in Asiatic politics causes war in Syria, where Hannibal has been received.

191 * * B. C. Cisalpine Gaul is formed into a fifth Roman province.

190 * * B. C. Antiochus III. makes peace with Rome.

He surrenders all his European territories and Asia Minor as far as the Taurus; agrees to pay an indemnity of 15,000 Eubœan talents (₤19,125,000), and to give up Hannibal to the Romans; but [the Carthaginian escapes].

183 * * B. C. Matina [Modena] becomes a Roman colony. [177. Luca, Tuscany.]

* * B. C. Turk. Macedonia is made the eighth Roman province. [Greece and Achaia are afterward added.]

143-31 B. C. The universal power of Rome is firmly established.

133 * * B. C. Asia M. Attalus III. of Pergamus bequeaths his kingdom and wealth to the Romans. (R. Province.)

133-121 B. C. Rome. Civil disturbances are led by the Gracchi.

Tiberius Sempronius Gracchus and his brother, Caius Sempronius, urge political and social reforms by revolutionary means. The peasantry are crowded out of the rural districts by the slave labor of the rich, who chiefly monopolize the land. Rome is full of an idle rabble, who live on bribes and the gifts of grain. The public offices and senatorial positions are controlled by family cliques.

Tiberius proposes the reenactment of the Licinian agrarian law, with slight changes, for the subdivision of land in favor of poor tenants; the tribune, Marcus Octavius, resists, and is deposed by an unconstitutional decree of the people. The people accept the law, and entrust its execution to the Gracchi and Appius Claudius.

133 * * B. C. Rome. Tiberius Gracchus is elected tribune of the people.

He proposes, in a popular assembly, to divide the treasures bequeathed by the King of Pergamus among the new land-owners, for purchasing necessary equipment; by usage the Senate has the control of such bequests.

* * B. C. Rome. Popular laws are proposed for shortening the term of military service and extending the right of appeal.

133-129 B. C. The division of the public lands under the agrarian laws is partially carried out. The democracy and optimates continue the struggle for supremacy.

132 * * B. C. Rome. Tiberius, in defiance of the Constitution, attempts to secure a reelection to the tribunate; the Senate violently interposes and stops the election. Tiberius and 300 followers are killed by the optimates.

* * B. C. Rome. Two Plebeian consuls are chosen.

129 * * B. C. Asia M. Pergamus becomes a Roman province called Asia.

* * B. C. The political murder (?) of P. Scipio Æmilianus, leader of the optimates, occurs.

125 * * B. C. Rome. The Senate sends the democratic consul, M. Fulvius Flaccus, to fight the Gauls, in order to put him out of its way, he having proposed to give the right of citizenship to all Italians. He establishes land communication between Italy and Spain, and lays the foundation of Roman rule in Transalpine Gaul.

123 * * B. C. Fr. The proconsul Sextius founds the colony of Aquæ Sextiæ [Aix].

* * B. C. Med. Sea. The Balearic Islands become subject to Rome.

* * B. C. Caius Gracchus, the questor of Sardinia, openly declares himself an enemy of the Senate, and returns to Rome; he is elected tribune of the people.

He attempts to execute the social reforms proposed by his brother, and is charged with attempting to subvert the Constitution.

* * B. C. Rome. Jury duty is transferred from the order of senators to that of the equites, which further divides the two branches of the aristocracy.

* * B. C. Rome. Colonies are sent out by the decrees of the people, instead of the decrees of the Senate.

* * B. C. Rome. The Senate favors the tribune, M. Livius Drusus, to undermine the popularity of Gracchus.

123+ * * B. C. Caius Gracchus makes new roads, marked by mile-stones, throughout the empire.

122 * * B. C. Rome. C. Gracchus secures his election to the tribunate for the second time.

* * B. C. Rome. Roman citizenship is denied.

The motion of C. Gracchus and M. Fulvius Flaccus, his colleague, to grant the rights of citizenship to all Latins, and Latin rights to other Italians, is defeated by the combined effort of the Senate and the lower classes of Rome. Gracchus also fails of election as tribune for the third year.

121 * * B. C. Rome. Civil war is occasioned by political murders.

C. Gracchus and M. Fulvius and several hundred followers are killed. Power is now restored to the Senate.

* * B. C. Rome. M. Livius Drusus removes the ground rent, and repeals the law prohibiting the alienation of assignments of public land, which permits the optimates to repurchase their confiscated lands.

120 * * B. C. Fr. Gallia Narbonensis (S. and S. E. Gaul) becomes a Roman province.

116 * * B. C. Fr. Narbo Martius founds the colony called Gallia Narbonensis [Provence]. Tolosa is also settled.

* * B. C. Afr. Jugurtha buys a peace from the consul, L. Calpurnius Bestia, but the Senate refuses to ratify it.

115 * * B. C. It. The people of Genua [Genoa] submit to the Romans.

111 * * B. C. Afr. The Senate's commissioners are bribed to assist Jugurtha in his struggle for the throne of Numidia.

He captures Cirta from his rival, and puts to death the entire male population, including many Italians, which excites indignation, and provokes war at Rome.

* * B. C. Rome. Agrarianism fails; a law is passed making all land still held in occupation private land.

107 * * B. C. Rome. C. Marius receives the consulate and chief command of the army, notwithstanding the opposition of the aristocracy. [104-100. He is elected consul five times in succession.]

105 * * B. C. Rome is terrorized by the annihilation of two armies in Gaul.

The democratic leaders denounce the incapable generals of the optimates, especially Cœpio and Maximus.

104 * * B. C. Rome. The comitiæ receive the power to elect the priests.

* * B. C. Rome. A new military system is adopted.

The Servian military organization, making military service a tax on property, is abolished; a citizen levy is substituted, supplemented by a recruiting system, and reenforcements from subject and vassal princes.

100 * * B. C. Rome. Marius is elected consul for the sixth time.

He seeks to overthrow the Constitution, and make himself king. He joins C. Servilius Glaucia, and L. Appuleius Saturninus, the leaders of the people.

* * B. C. Rome. Saturninus, as tribune, by violent means procures a division of lands among the veterans of Marius.

* * B. C. Rome. The consul, Q. Metellus, goes into voluntary exile. [99. Recalled.]

98 * * B. C. Rome. Marius loses his popularity; hated by both parties, he retires to Asia.

91 * * B. C. Rome. Three bills are brought forward by Marcus Livius Drusus, the tribune of the Plebeians.

One is for the reform of the law courts and enlarging the Senate, another for a new division of public lands, a third bestowing the right of citizenship on Italians. Drusus is assassinated.

* * B. C. The Italian allies revolt.

Except the Latins, most of the Etruscans, and some southern cities, because of the assassination of Drusus.

90 * * B. C. Rome. The contending parties become reconciled in the presence of danger arising from the revolt. Repeated levies are made, and citizens and freedmen are enrolled in the armies; the war is popular with both parties.

* * B. C. The enfranchisement of Italy begins. The right of citizenship is granted to all the Latins, and to all who had not revolted.

89 * * B. C. Rome. Citizenship is granted to all applicants within 60 days, from among eight tribes mentioned.

* * B. C. The municipalities of Cisalpine Gaul receive Latin rights.

88 * * B. C. The political concessions cause the social war in the south to end.

* * B. C. Gr. The Grecian cities revolt, and join the victorious banner of Mithridates (p. 1028).

* * B. C. Rome. Sulla becomes consul.

88-82 B. C. Civil war. (See Army.)

The tribune P. Salpicius Rufus makes revolutionary proposals respecting the new citizens, Italians and freedmen, which are carried by violent means. (88.) Demagogues precipitate a crisis. (See Army.)

* * B. C. Rome. Sulla introduces consolidated legislation; restores the old order of voting in the centuries, and decrees that no vote shall be taken by the people until the measure has first been approved by the Senate.

87 * * B. C. Gr. The chief cities of Greece join Archelaus against the Romans.

* * B. C. Cnæus Octavius (democrat) and Lucius Cornelius Cinna, a partizan of Marius, are elected consuls.

* * B. C. Rome. Cinna makes a violent attempt to renew the laws of Sulpicius while Sulla is absent in the war; he is driven out of the Forum by the optimates, after a fierce struggle.

* * B. C. Cinna gathers an army under Marius, and takes Rome. (See Army.)

* * B. C. Rome. A violent revolution is attended by a reign of terror under Marius and Carbo.

The optimates are slaughtered for five days by command of Marius, and their property is confiscated; plundering and outrages by the armed bands follow.

86 * * B. C. Rome. Marius is elected consul for the seventh time; Cinna is also elected; Sulla is deposed while absent with the army.

* * B. C. Rome. On the death of Marius, L. Valerius Flaccus is elected consul by the democrats. Murdered by Fimbria.] Cinna rules three years. [Murdered.]

ARMY — NAVY.

83 * * B. C. Sulla lands with 40,000 men and many exiled nobles at Brundusium.

He is welcomed by his partizan, Cneius Pompeius, 23 years of age, and three legions of volunteers, who join him after being guaranteed their rights.

83-81 B. C. Second Mithridatic war. Mithridates fails to completely evacuate Cappadocia; the proprætor Murena occupies it, invades Pontus, but is forced to retire.

 * B. C. Sulla conquers Norbanus on Mt. Tifata, near Naples, during negotiations. Scipio's army goes over to Sulla.

82 * * B. C. Sulla winters in Capua, then marches against the consuls (younger) Marius and Carbo.

 * B. C. The Marians are defeated at Spoletium by Crassus and Pompey. Sulla defeats Marius at Sacriportus.

 * B. C. Sulla advances rapidly on the democrats under Carbo in Etruria. They are defeated at Faventia. (N. It.)

Nov. * B. C. Rome. Sulla repels an attack of Samnites at the Colline Gate; he slaughters 3,000 prisoners.

 * B. C. Sp. Sertorius, a Marian commander, is driven out by Sulla's generals.

 * B. C. Rome. Prænestе surrenders to Sulla's army; he executes terrible vengeance on the conquered cities and towns of Italy.

81 * * B. C. Asia. Pompey reduces Numidia, and obtains a triumph.

80-72 B. C. Sp. War against Sertorius; Q. Metellus, and later Pompey, conduct operations.

78-67 B. C. War against pirates (p. 1028).

77 * * B. C. Rome. Lepidus, at the head of an army of reformers, is defeated by Quintus Lutatius Catulus and Pompey on the Campus Martius; again defeated at Cosa; he flees to Sardinia.

 * B. C. Marcus Junius Brutus surrenders to Pompey at Mutina [Modena].

76 * * B. C. Sp. Sertorius, a partizan of Marius, defeats Pompey in two battles, one at Sucro and the other near Saguntum. [72. Murdered.]

75 * * B. C. Asia M. P. Servilius fights the pirates, and takes Isauria, Pamphylia, and Pisidia for Rome, under the name of Cilicia.

74-63 B. C. Asia M. Third Mithridatic war. (See State.)

74 * * B. C. The two consuls, L. Lucullus and M. Aurelius Cotta, are defeated.

73 * * B. C. Mithridates is driven out of Cyzicus with great loss; Lucullus is victorious in a sea-fight off Lemnos; he defeats Mithridates at Cabira, driving him out of his kingdom.

73-71 B. C. Sicily. War of the gladiators, or third servile war.

Spartacus, a Thracian slave, and 70 others, escape from Capua, and occupy Vesuvius; plundering follows, and numerous slaves and impoverished peasants join them, until an army of 70,000 is formed, which defeats four Roman armies in succession.

72 * * B. C. Sp. Sertorius is assassinated by Perperna and his accomplices; Pompey defeats and executes Perperna.

 * B. C. Spartacus threatens Rome.

The legions are routed, and the city is terrorized, and the chief command given to the prætor Crassus; the insurgents turn aside, and plunder parts of Italy.

72-70 B. C. Asia M. Lucius Licinius Lucullus captures the trading cities, Heraclea, Sinope, Amisus, from Mithridates, and occupies Armenia Minor.

71 * * B. C. Crassus defeats the insurgents at Petelia in Apulia. Pompey annihilates their bands.

70 * * B. C. Asia M. Unauthorized by the Senate, Lucullus invades Armenia, and opens war on Tigranes, the son-in-law of Mithridates, and King of Syria.

69 * * B. C. Asia M. Lucullus defeats Tigranes at Tigranocerta in Armenia.

The Asiatics are panic-stricken and easily routed, losing 100,000 infantry and all the cavalry; Roman loss, 105.

68 * * B. C. Asia. Lucullus crosses the Euphrates, and wins another battle; a mutiny of his soldiers compels a retreat to Mesopotamia.

67 * * B. C. Metellus subdues Crete after a prolonged effort.

 * B. C. Pompey receives unlimited command over the Mediterranean provinces for 50 miles inward from the coast, and a fleet of 200 ships, for the suppression of piracy.

He frees the Mediterranean from pirates, capturing 3,000 vessels, and killing 10,000 pirates; 20,000 more he settles in the interior of the country.

± * * B. C. Asia M. Mithridates, having returned to Pontus, defeats a Roman army under Triarius at Zela. He ravages parts of Bithynia and Cappadocia. [66. He is driven out by Pompey.]

 * B. C. Asia. Lucullus takes Nisibis.

66 * * B. C. Asia M. Pompey defeats Mithridates on the Lycos in Armenia. [65. Pompey abandons his pursuit. 63. Mithridates commits suicide.]

 * B. C. Asia M. Tigranes tenders his submission to Pompey at Artaxata.

He is to retain his hereditary kingdom, but deprived of his conquests in Syria and Asia Minor, and to a fine of 6,000 talents.

64 * * B. C. Asia. Pompey reduces Syria to a Roman province.

63 * * B. C. Asia. Pompey captures Jerusalem, and enters the sanctuary of the temple of the Jews.

 * B. C. An insurgent army is organized in Etruria under C. Manlius, in aid of the schemes of Catiline.

 * Rome. B. C. Antonius is put in command of the army against Catiline.

62 * * B. C. Catiline's army of two legions is defeated by the lieutenant of Antonius, commanding the army of the Senate at Pistoria, and their leader killed.

61 * * B. C. Pompey dismisses his army at Brundusium, and enters Italy as a private citizen.

58-50 B. C. Fr. Cæsar conquers Gaul. [58. He defeats the invading Helvetians at Bibracte. Also Ariovistus [near Mülhausen]. 57. Also the Belgii (p. 662).]

57 * * B. C. Switz. Cæsar occupies Octodurum to secure the pass of Great St. Bernard. [56. He subdues the Veneti in Armorica [Bretagne]. Publius Crassus subdues the Aquitani [Guienne?].]

 * B. C. Belg.+ The Morini and Menapii yield to the Romans. [Belgic Gaul is subdued.]

55 * * B. C. Fr. Cæsar defeats and drives across the Rhine the invading German tribes of Usipetes and Tenchteri.

 * B. C. Eng. Cæsar crosses the Channel with two legions. [They soon return. 54. Again with five legions and 2,000 Gallic cavalry].

53 * * B. C. Asia. Parthians defeat Crassus in Mesopotamia, and destroy his army.

 * B. C. Prus. Cæsar crosses the Rhine on a bridge of piles [between Coblenz and Andernach], and recrosses 15 days later, after devastating the country.

 * B. C. Prus. Ambiorix subdued (p. 662).

 * B. C. Fr. The Gauls revolt (p. 662).

 * B. C. Titus Labienus, Cæsar's legate, occupies Lutetia Parisiorum [Paris], the capital of a Gallic tribe, the Parisii.

 * B. C. Fr. Cæsar besieges Gergovia, south of Clermont-Ferrand; Vercingetorix, chief of the Arverni, forces him to retreat, and he joins his army with that of Labienus.

49-48 B. C. Rome. Civil war arises between the two rivals, Cæsar and Pompey.

49 * * B. C. Cæsar, with one legion, crosses the Rubicon [near Rimini].

It is a small brook marking the boundary of his province; he thus begins the civil war against the Senate.

ART — SCIENCE — NATURE.

69 * * B. C. Rome. The Capitol, rebuilt by Sulla, is dedicated by Quintus Catulus.

60 * * B. C. Gr. Julius Cæsar revives the Isthmian games.

58 * * B. C. Rome. The theater of Æmilius Secannus is erected.

BIRTHS — DEATHS.

82 * * Varro, Publius Terentius, poet, born. [39. Dies.]

80 * * Brutus, Marcus Junius, conspirator, born. [36. Dies.]

70 * * Mæcenas, Caius Cilnius, states., born. [8. Dies.]

Vergil, Publius Vergilius Maro, poet, born. [19. Dies.]

65 * * Horace, Quintus Horatius Flaccus, poet, born. [8. Dies.)

63 * * Agrippa, Marcus V., states., born. [12. Dies.]

Augustus, Caius Julius Cæsar Octavius, first emperor, born. [14 A. D. Dies.]

59 * * Livius, or Livy, Titus, historian, born. [17 A. D. Dies.]

1st Century. Æsopius Clodius, tragedian, b. Diodorus Siculus, historian, born.

LETTERS.

70±-55 B. C. De Rerum Natura, by Lucretius, appears.

62-54 B. C. The poems of Catulus appear.

51 * * B. C. Commentarii de Bello Gallico, by Cæsar, appears. [47, Commentarii de Bello Civili.]

50±-34 B. C. Bellum Catilinarum, Bellum Jugurthinum, and Historiarum Libri V., by Sallust, appear.

SOCIETY.

82 * * B. C. Sulla orders more than 3,000 Samnite prisoners to be slaughtered.

 * B. C. Sulla liberates 10,000 slaves belonging to the proscribed citizens, and rights of citizenship are given them. (Called Cornelians.)

78-67 B. C. A pirate community is gradually organized, with its central authority in Crete and Cilicia.

62 * * B. C. Crassus pays a part of the large indebtedness of C. Julius Cæsar.

61 * * B. C. Rome. Pompey celebrates a magnificent triumph, lasting two days.

60± * * B. C. Cæsar's daughter, Julia, 23 years of age, is given to Pompey in marriage, thus uniting with family ties the two popular leaders.

STATE.

84 * * B. C. Sulla makes a treaty of peace with Mithridates (p. 1029).

* * B. C. Rome. Caius Papirius Carbo Marius and the younger Sertorius become leaders of the democratic party.

83 * * B. C. Rome. Lucius Cornelius Scipio and Caius Norbanus, two incapable men, are elected consuls.

82 * * B. C. Rome. Sulla causes himself to be appointed dictator for an unlimited time, in order to reorganize the commonwealth.

Another reign of terror follows; proscription lists are made of the evil-minded. Sulla outlaws 4,700 citizens, and confiscates their property. Allotments of land are made to his veterans; military colonies are established with full rights of citizenship among the territories dominated by the hostile party, whose rights of citizenship are abrogated.

Sulla attempts a conservative aristocratic reform of the government.

The Senate is reorganized; 300 additional members are to be chosen by the comitia tributa; 20 questors to be annually elected by the same. The censor's privilege of revising the roll of the Senate every five years is abolished. [72. Restored.] Senators are made irremovable, and places in the juries restored from the equites to the Senate.

The power to elect the priests is withdrawn from the comitiæ. Sulla abolishes the Servian order of voting.

81 * * B. C. Rome. Sulla permits the election of consuls, but retains to himself the office of dictator, and conducts the government.

80 * * B. C. Rome. Sulla causes himself and Quintus Cæcilius Pius Metellus, one of his generals, to be elected consuls. [79. He voluntarily abdicates, and retires to private life. 78. Dies.]

74 * * B. C. Asia M. Bithynia is bequeathed to the Romans by Nicomedes III.; it becomes a Roman province.

* * B. C. Asia M. Mithridates VI. declares war, because of the aggressions of Tigranes of Armenia, who takes possession of Cappadocia and Syria; also because of the bequest of Nicomedes III., bestowing Bithynia on the Romans.

70 * * B. C. The consuls Marcus Licinius Crassus and Pompey [the Great] restore to the tribunate the privileges withdrawn by Sulla.

* * B. C. Rome. The Sullan Constitution is overthrown.

The Aurelian law is passed; jurors are no longer to be taken exclusively from senators; one-third are to be senators, and two-thirds men belonging to the equestrian census.

67 * * B. C. Cyrene and Crete become provinces of Rome. (74 B. C.; 27 B. C. United.)

* * B. C. Pompey has all the public treasuries and the resources of all the provinces and client states placed unconditionally at his disposal, for the suppression of piracy, which nearly paralyzes commerce.

* * B. C. Rome. Julius Cæsar is questor. [65, Curule edile; 63, Pontifex maximus.]

66–62 B. C. Rome. Conspiracy of Catiline.

The democrats, led by M. Crassus and Caius Julius Cæsar, unite with the anarchists, led by Lucius Sergius Catilina an ex-pretor. The democrats urge the overthrow of the existing government before the return of Pompey; and the anarchists urge the cancellation of debts, the proscription of the wealthy, and the confiscation of their property.

66 * * B. C. Rome. Catiline's first conspiracy to murder the consuls fails through the indecision of conspirators, and because of Cicero's eloquence.

65 * * B. C. Syria. Pompey dethrones King Antiochus Asiaticus.

64 * * B. C. Rome. The conspiracy of Catiline is renewed, and fails.

It is proposed to defeat Cicero, and secure the election of Catiline and Caius Hybrida Antonius at the consular elections for 63, by the influence of Cæsar and Crassus; Antonius alone secures election, and is detached from the conspirators by Cicero, his colleague.

63 * * B. C. Rome. Cicero is elected consul by the middle class of citizens.

* * B. C. Rome. Catiline conspires with others to murder his competitors at the consular election for 62, also the consul, Cicero, who would preside over it.

Cicero is informed of the conspiracy by his spies and on the day of the election exposes and denounces it, before the Senate, having armed guards present.

(Nov. 8.) Cicero delivers his first speech in the Senate against the conspiracy of Catiline, who flees in the night to the insurgent army of C. Manlius in Etruria.

(Nov. 9.) Cicero makes his second speech against Catiline to the people.

(* *) Arrest of the accomplices, Lentulus, Cethegus, Gabinius, Statilius, and Cœparius.

(Dec. 3.) Cicero makes his third speech against Catiline to the people.

(Dec. 5.) Cicero makes his fourth speech against Catiline in the senate. The senate decrees that the conspirators shall be strangled in person without trial; Cæsar votes against it; Cato's speech secures the vote. [Consul Cicero executes the imprisoned conspirators, and is greeted as pater patriæ.]

* * B. C. Judea is made tributary. Syria and Cilicia (1023), capital, Tarsus, become Roman provinces. [65. Pontus.]

62 * * B. C. Rome. Julius Cæsar administers the prætorship.

* * B. C. Rome. The Senate disaffects Pompey toward the government by refusing to grant the allotment of lands he requests for his veterans.

61 * * B. C. Sp. C. Julius Cæsar goes to Hispania Ulterior as propretor.

He lays the foundation of his military fame, and secures much money; he refuses a triumph on his return.

60 * * B. C. Rome. The first triumvirate is formed by Pompey, Cæsar, and Crassus. [59. They secure the election of Cæsar as consul. The republic is powerless in the hands of these citizens.]

* * B. C. Cæsar receives the government of Gallia Cisalpina and Illyricum by a popular decree, for five years, with extraordinary powers. On the motion of Pompey the senate adds Gallia Narbonensis [S. Fr.] to his province.

* * B. C. Rome. Aulus Gabinius (favorable to Pompey) and Lucius Calpurnius Piso, the father-in-law of Cæsar, are elected consuls for the next year.

59 * * B. C. Rome. Cæsar proposes an agrarian law especially favoring Pompey's veterans.

It is opposed by his colleague, M. Bibulus, an optimate, and also by the Senate; this law and the ratification of the organization of Asia are both submitted to the popular assemblies, where they are passed upon without the consent of the Senate.

58 * * B. C. Rome. Publius Clodius, the tribune of the people, procures the absence of Marcus Porcius Cato and Cicero from Rome.

Cato is sent to possess the kingdom of Cyprus by a popular vote. Cicero is outlawed for executing a Roman citizen without a legal trial (see 63 B. C.). Clodius causes Cicero's house to be burned, and both his Tusculan and Formicean estates to be ravaged.

57–52 B. C. Rome. The partizans of Clodius and Titus Annius Milo create tumults.

57 * * B. C. The recall of Cicero is procured by the efforts of the tribune Milo, to assist in opposing Clodius (democrat). Cato also returns.

56 * * B. C. Cæsar, Pompey, and Crassus, with 200 senators belonging to their party, meet in Luca [in Tuscany], and renew the triangular alliance.

* * B. C. Rome. Pompey and Crassus are elected consuls for the year 55 by the use of force, in harmony with the plans adopted at Luca.

55 * * B. C. Rome. Democratic decrees are issued.

The people decree the government of both Spains to Pompey for five years, and that of Syria to Crassus, and they extend Cæsar's proconsulship in Gaul for five years; they decree the payment by the state of troops recruited by Cæsar on his own authority. The aristocratic party are unable to resist.

54 * * B. C. Asia. Crassus, having closed his year as consul, goes to Syria as ruler.

52 * * B. C. Rome. Disorders prevail.

The armed democratic bands of Clodius patrol the streets and forum, and are opposed by the armed bands of Milo, in the aristocratic reaction. Clodius and Milo meeting in Via Appia occasions a fight between their followers, in which Clodius is wounded, and at Milo's command put to death.

* * B. C. Fr. The Gauls revolt (p. 662). [50. Suppressed.]

52–51 B. C. Rome. Pompey is elected sole consul; dictatorial power is given him to put down the unruly mobs. [51. Sept. 30. He enters Rome, and is given a third magnificent triumph.]

* * B. C. Rome. Cæsar, the leader of the democracy, and Pompey, the leader of the republican aristocracy, are alienated from each other.

Pompey selects his new father-in-law, Metellus Scipio, for his colleague in the consulate, and extends his governorship in Spain for five years, claiming as a pretext the necessity of the Parthian war (now victoriously ended); he weakens Cæsar's command by recalling two legions.

51 * * B. C. The alliance of Cæsar, Pompey, and Crassus is renewed.

Caused by an attempt of the republicans in the Senate to free themselves from the influence of their rulers, and to revise the agrarian law which was passed while Cæsar was consul.

* * B. C. Fr. Aquitania, Gaul becomes a Roman province. [27 Lugdunensis.]

49 Jan. 1. Rome. Cæsar makes his last offer of compromise with the Senate.

The Senate demands that he resign his proconsulship, and become a private citizen before his term expires, as the Gallic war is ended; that he disband his legions on pain of outlawry. [War follows.]

ARMY — NAVY.

49 * * B. C. Cæsar is reenforced by a second legion.

The two legions successfully march through Umbria, Picenum, and Apulia to Brundusium. Corfinium, under Domitius, is captured while on the way.

 * B. C. Cæsar, strengthened by a third legion, besieges Brundusium, and levies three new legions. The rapidity of his movements bewilders his foes.

 * B. C. Pompey escapes with his army to Greece, whither Cæsar is unable to follow for the lack of vessels.

49-44 B. C. Cæsar is supreme.

Mar. * B. C. Cæsar commences the construction of a fleet, and marches for Rome, he having been ordered by the Senate to disband his army. He is already the master of Italy.

 * B. C. Fr. Caius Trebonius besieges and captures Massilia [Marseilles].

Aug. * B. C. Sp. Cæsar compels Afranius and Marcus Petreius, the legates of Pompey, to surrender at Ilerda.

 * B. C. Sp. Most of the cities of Hispania Ulterior join Cæsar; Varro, its commander, finally capitulates at [Cadiz].

 * B. C. Cæsar marches back to Italy.

 * B. C. Sicily is subjugated by Caius Scribonius Curio, Cæsar's legate.

 B. C. Rome. The temple of Janus is closed for the third time in Roman history. [25. Also for the fourth time.]

17 B. C. Rome. Caius Cæsar and Lucius Cæsar are adopted by Augustus, and designated as his successors.

STATE.

49 Jan. B. C. Rome. The Senate declares Cæsar an enemy of the Republic if he fails to disband his army within a given time.

 B. C. Cæsar marches toward the capital; his friends among the tribunes of the people flee to him at Ravenna.

 B. C. Rome is alarmed.

The tidings of Cæsar's crossing the Rubicon with his army, which Roman generals were forbidden to do, is received. Pompey and many senators flee from Rome to Brundusium.

 B. C. Rome. Cæsar arrives, and relieves the apprehension of cruelty by his magnanimity toward his foes.

48–44 B. C. Rome. Cæsar is dictator.

He is proclaimed dictator by the prætor, Marcus Æmilius Lepidus, during his absence in the army.

48 B. C. Rome. Cæsar abdicates the office of dictator after 11 days.

He secures the office of consul with Publius Servilius. The fugitive part of the Senate prolongs the term of Pompey and of all officials of the previous year.

 B. C. Rome. Cæsar receives distinguished honors.

He is given the consulate for five years, the tribunate for life, and the dictatorship for one year. He begins to bear the title of imperator.

 B. C. Cæsar visits Alexandria, and decides between the regal claims of Ptolemy XII. (10 years of age) and his sister Cleopatra (16 years of age); this occasions war with Egypt (p. 653).

46 B. C. Afr. Cæsar conquers and unites a part of Numidia [Algeria] as a province, and gives the remainder of his conquest to Bocchus, King of Eastern Mauritania [Morocco].

 B. C. Rome. Cæsar returns, and is honored with four triumphs, for Gaul, Egypt, Pharnaces, and Africa.

 B. C. Cæsar is appointed dictator for 10 years, and censor without a colleague for three years. [45. He causes the Senate to appoint him consul for 10 years. 44. It appoints him dictator for life.]

44 B. C. Rome. The Senate again becomes only an advisory council.

 B. C. Cæsar reorganizes the military system; also the financial system of direct taxes, which substitute tax-farming. His veterans receive Italian lands.

 B. C. The colonization of the provinces is promoted, for the purpose of Latinizing their populations, and relieving Rome of some of its proletarians.

Mar. 15. B. C. Rome. Cæsar is assassinated in the senate-house by Marcus Junius Brutus, Caius Cassius Longinus, and others.

About 50 republican senators are in the conspiracy, and he falls with 23 wounds at the foot of Pompey's statue.

 B. C. Rome. The Senate rewards the conspirators.

M. Brutus receives the government of Macedonia, Cassius that of Syria, Decimus Brutus that of Gallia Cisalpina.

 B. C. Roma. Usurpations of Mark Antony.

Antony, one of the two consuls, obtains possession of Cæsar's papers and makes an unscrupulous use of them, and aspires to supreme power, pretending to execute the will of Cæsar.

 B. C. Antony receives from the people the province of Gallia Cisalpina, which the Senate refused to give him.

Apr.* B. C. The Senate seeks to regain power by entering negotiations with Caius Octavius [Octavian], the grandson and heir of Julius Cæsar, 18 years of age. [43. Antony, the usurper, is declared an enemy of the republic.]

Sept. 2. B. C. Rome. Cicero delivers his first philippic against Mark Antony.

43 B. C. Rome. Hirtius and Pansa are consuls. Hirtius is killed in the battle of Mutina. Pansa dies of wounds.

 B. C. Rome. Octavian marches to Rome, and compels his own election as consul; also the repeal of the amnesty granted the conspirators against Cæsar, and sentence for their punishment.

Nov.* B. C. The second triumvirate is formed by Mark Antony, Octavian, and Marcus Æmilius Lepidus, against Marcus Brutus and other republicans.

Their rule is ratified for five years by the people; a reign of terror follows. Hundreds of senators and 2,000 equites are outlawed, and property confiscated. [Dec. 7. Cicero is proscribed and killed.]

42 B. C. Rome. P. Ventidius Bassus is elected consul.

 B. C. The republicans are overthrown by the defeat at Philippi.

41 B. C. Octavian makes the promised allotments to veterans in Italy, and proceeds to crush Pompey. Antony restores order in the East.

Feb. 5. B. C. Octavian [Augustus] is saluted by the laurel-crowned senators as the father of his country.

40 B. C. Octavian, having obtained supreme authority in Italy, assumes the administration of Gaul and Spain, giving Marcus Æmilius Lepidus only the government of Africa. Antony approaches Italy to secure his rights.

 B. C. Civil war is threatened, but prevented for a time by a truce agreed to at Brundusium.

Antony marries Octavia, the sister of Octavian, Fulvia his former wife being dead. Octavian governs the West, Antony the East, and Lepidus, Africa.

39 B. C. Sextus Pompeius, son of Mark Antony, having created a naval empire and mastered Sicily, obstructs the grain supplies for Rome, and thereby compels the triumvirs to enter the treaty of Misenum, by which he receives Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica (?), and Peloponnesus.

 B. C. Antony goes to the East; he remains chiefly with Cleopatra (p. 653).

38 B. C. Menas, the admiral of Sextus, treacherously surrenders Sardinia with fleet and troops to Octavian; this provokes war.

37 B. C. Octavian and Antony meet at Tarentum, and settle differences; the triumvirate is renewed for five years.

 B. C. Rome. Marcus Vipsanius Agrippa is elected consul.

36 B. C. Lepidus is ejected from the triumvirate.

Octavian assumes the administration of Africa, and is sole ruler of the West. Great honors are showered upon him.

34± B. C. Egy. Antony proclaims Cleopatra "Queen of Kings," and gives to her and her sons Roman provinces; it is also announced that Cæsarion, her natural son by Julius Cæsar, is Cæsar's true heir (p. 653).

31 B. C. Rome. Octavian obtains a decree from the people dismissing Antony from his command, and declaring war on Cleopatra.

31 (30?) B. C.—476 A. D. The Roman Empire.

31 B. C.–14 A. D. [Augustus] Cæsar Octavius rules the Roman world; the first of the emperors.

31 B. C. Octavian makes Egypt a Roman province. [It becomes the granary of Rome.]

27 Jan. 1. B. C. Octavian restores the republic under his own presidency. [Jan. 13. The transfer of the government is completed. The Senate bestows on him the title Augustus.]

28 B. C. Rome. Augustus is made "princeps senatus." [23. He causes the Senate to give him the "tribunician power," and the proconsular imperium for life. 12. Becomes pontifex maximus.]

27–19 B. C. The Roman provinces are redivided into senatorial and imperial.

The senatorial provinces comprise the pacified provinces of Africa, Asia, Achaia, Illyricum, Macedonia, Sicilia, Creta, with Cyrenaica, Bithynia, Sardinia, and Hispania Bœtica. The imperial provinces require an army to sustain the legates, who govern in the name of Augustus, and comprise Hispania Tarraconensis, Lusitania; the Gaulish provinces of Narbonensis, Lugdunensis, Aquitania, and Belgica; Germanis Superior et Inferior, Mœsia, Syria, Cilicia, Cyprus, and Ægyptus.

25 B. C. Asia M. New provinces established in Galatia and Pamphylia. Africa and Numidia are united.

23–13 B. C. Asia M. M. Vipsanius Agrippa commands in the East.

19 B. C. Spain submits.

18–17 B. C. Augustus makes reforms in government, society, and morals.

INDEX AND APPENDIX.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

THE index has been prepared with uncommon fullness of detail, so as to aid those persons who may turn in haste to find desired information; also to give necessary information to those having none of the clews which a general historical knowledge affords. But it is anticipated that many readers who are familiar with the general trend of the history will commonly ignore the index altogether and turn at once to the text, where their search will be facilitated by its topical classification; then by glancing at the dates and the helpful locality words, which stand as double guide-posts before each item, they will speedily find the desired information.

The index also contains some items which were omitted from the text. These are limited almost entirely to dates, which are always enclosed in parentheses so that they can be distinguished from page numerals.

The following rules which have been observed in preparing the index may aid the reader in its practical use.

Abbreviations. Only a few arbitrary abbreviations have been used. See the full list facing page 1.

Books. The titles of books are not indexed, but may be found by following the references under the author's name.

Colleges. The larger American and British colleges are indexed twice; once under the name of the city, and more fully under the name of the college or university. The smaller colleges and many foreign universities are only indexed under the name of the city of their location. Colleges connected with universities are only referred to under the name of the university to which they are attached, as, "Christ's College" is indexed under "Oxford University."

Conventions. Commercial, political, and other conventions are indexed under the name of the body convened, and not under the name of the city. Exception: national conventions of political parties are important items in the history of cities, and they are indexed under the names of the cities where convened, as well as under the party name.

Countries. Each country appears in the text as an abbreviated history, therefore it is not again abbreviated in the index. But items in foreign countries are cross-indexed under the name of the country to which they relate, to give a fuller history; if the items are duplicates of others, they are omitted in the index.

Italics. Italics are used in the index as in the text, for the titles of books, magazines, and newspapers; also for titles of paintings, names of vessels and horses, and names of planetary bodies.

Legislation. Acts of State legislation are indexed under the names of States; those of the National Congress under the titles of the Acts.

Local Events. Events of only local interest are indexed under the names of the towns or cities in which they occur, and also under the names of the persons directly connected with each occurrence.

Names. The name of every town and city is indexed in its alphabetical order; every personal name is also indexed except those remotely or perfunctorily connected with an event.

Newspapers, etc. The names of newspapers are commonly indexed under the name of the place of publication; the denominational papers are indexed under the names of the denominations who publish them; some others appear under their own name.

Personal Names. Full personal names are commonly given in the index, but often abbreviated in the text, especially those of Europeans, Asiatics, and South Americans. Members of the British peerage are commonly indexed under their family names. these are often less familiar than the title name; but the former may be readily found by following the references given under the title name, as under "Palmerston, Viscount," may be found "See Temple, John Henry."

Religious Assemblies. These are commonly indexed under the denominational name, as "General Assembly" under "Presbyterians." Church councils of world-wide interest are indexed under councils; some unusual or very important national gatherings are indexed under their proper titles.

Religious Denominations. Various religious denominations having a common family name are grouped in the index; under the general name, as "Cumberland Presbyterians" follow "Presbyterians."

States. States forming a component part of a country, as Virginia, or Hungary, are quite fully indexed, thereby forming a skeletonized State history. These references may be much extended at the option of the reader, by turning to the references found under the names of important cities, as Albany, Buffalo, and New York City to obtain a fuller history of New York State.
